

We want to hear from children and family law attorneys practicing in Multnomah County about representing families with domestic violence issues!

The Family Court Enhancement Project is a grant given by the federal Office on Violence Against Women to Multnomah County Circuit Court with the aim of improving the family court's response to custody cases involving domestic violence. In an effort to get input regarding how to make improvements, the project is hosting two focus groups for children's and family law attorneys.

The groups will be held:

October 23rd, 9-10:30 am and October 29th, 3-4:30pm

McKinley Irvin Family Law Offices
1000 SW Broadway, Suite 1810
Portland, OR 97205

These groups will be facilitated by FCEP's research partner from Portland State University. Participants will be invited to discuss their struggles and successes while working with families experiencing domestic violence. Questions will include the following: What barriers are there to working effectively with these cases? What tools did you find useful? What additional tools or supports do you need? What did the court do well? What practices or policies should the court change? What other suggestions do you have for improving the system?

Please RSVP to Jenny Woodson at Jennifer.L.Woodson@ojd.state.or.us at least two days prior to the group you wish to attend. Feel free to contact Jenny with any additional questions about the groups or FCEP.

We want to hear from children and family law attorneys practicing in Multnomah County about representing families with domestic violence issues!

The Family Court Enhancement Project is a grant given by the federal Office on Violence Against Women to Multnomah County Circuit Court with the aim of improving the family court's response to custody cases involving domestic violence. In an effort to get input regarding how to make improvements, the project is hosting two focus groups for children's and family law attorneys.

The groups will be held:

October 23rd, 9-10:30 am and October 29th, 3-4:30pm

McKinley Irvin Family Law Offices
1000 SW Broadway, Suite 1810
Portland, OR 97205

These groups will be facilitated by FCEP's research partner from Portland State University. Participants will be invited to discuss their struggles and successes while working with families experiencing domestic violence. Questions will include the following: What barriers are there to working effectively with these cases? What tools did you find useful? What additional tools or supports do you need? What did the court do well? What practices or policies should the court change? What other suggestions do you have for improving the system?

Please RSVP to Jenny Woodson at Jennifer.L.Woodson@ojd.state.or.us at least two days prior to the group you wish to attend. Feel free to contact Jenny with any additional questions about the groups or FCEP.